AIRMAN DROPS TO EARTH

Gust of Wind Strikes Machine, and R. C. Fenwick Is Killed,
Salisbury, England, August 13.—One of the most experienced of English sirmen, R. C. Fenwick, was killed to-day while participating in the military aviation speed tests on Salisburg Plain: He was flying over the aviation field camp in his piplane at an allitude of 300 feet, when the machine suddenly turned turtle and dashed to the ground. It is believed a gust of wind struck the machine under one wing, for it turned complements over and dropped to earth like under one wing, for it turned com-plentely over and dropped to earth like a stone. The biplane was smashed a stone. The biplane was smashed to bits. Fenwick's death was instan-

At the trial to-day the negro was speedily convicted of "unlawful manslaughter." Judge Gilbert sentenced him to three years in the penitentiary. The spectators made no show of their dissatisfaction with the verdict, and as soon as court adjourned many of the court officials left. When deputies started away with their prisoner they were surrounded and disarmed. They were held in the courthouse, while members of the mob, all unmanked, took the negro out to a street car.

Heaching the negro quarter, the passengers were ordered off the car, which was taken about 100 yards farther. Then the negro was taken off the car and his body riddled with builets.

An investigation of the lynching will be held to-morrow.

"I am receiving splendid support from the bankers of New York City." The word from the clearing house committee requesting the various banks to disclose their records of Becker's deposits was transmitted by telephone, and results were quickly forthcoming. The district attorney has received information that Becker may have put money away in several banks outside of the city as well, and if these are definitely located and diffusily should be experienced in obtaining the records, the New York bankers have promised to use their influence to secure their production.

The prosecutor expects that the sid of the bankers will be invaluable to him when he takes up the larger phase of the graft inquiry, which is being held in abeyance pending the efforts of the State to complete the weaving of its web of evidence around Lleutenant Becker, the alleged instigator of the murder of Rosenthal, the actual murderers and those of their accomplices who have not been promised immunity. It became known to-night that the district attorney is holding for presentation to the grand jury in dualtime avidence by which he expects to complet four police inspectors on the charge of collection of blackmail from gambling houses and disorderly resorts.
